

Digital Photography and Video Recording Consent Form

All video recordings and digital photography will be stored by Integrated Treatment Services in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998. The video recordings and digital photography will only be used in the manner for which consent has been obtained:

Assessment and therapy intervention:

Video recordings and digital photography can act as an essential part of the clients case notes and provide a useful baseline staff and parents/carers to review at regular intervals. We readily use these methods to track therapy

Internal ITS training:

Video recordings and digital photography provide an essential opportunity for our staff to observe and review their own practice when working with our clients. ITS speech and language therapists may wish to use such recordings to discuss at clinical supervision and to train other ITS staff on relevant approaches.

External training run by ITS therapists:

Video recordings and digital photography is an essential way to train other professionals such as education staff and health care staff about the communication needs of clients. It is essential to raise awareness in education settings and health care settings, to ensure communication needs are recognised and accommodated for.

We also aim to train and inform other parents/carers about the possible communication approaches available to their child and show success through other clients.

We request that you indicate your consent to Integrated Treatment Services (ITS) to name) for the following purposes:

Assessment and therapy Intervention

Internal ITS training

External Training run by ITS
