Speech and Language Therapy and Associated Services

We understand that you need a therapist who:

- › Understands the unique needs of your students, their teachers and the setting as a whole
- › Feels integrated as part of your teaching team
- › Work flexibly to ensure therapy fits within the school timetable, without making excess demands on teaching staff
- › Provide a range of therapy approaches and delivery styles to meet the varying needs of your students

We understand that employing therapists directly into your school can be a difficult task to achieve. Therefore our services ensure your school can achieve:

- › The appropriate clinical skill mix
- › Excellent therapist retention
- › High professional standards and interpersonal skills
- › Better outcomes with clear outcome measures

These areas lie at the heart of our services to schools and are the very reasons why schools highly recommend our service.

We understand therapists

When therapists are managed by therapists they are far more satisfied in their work. They achieve better therapy outcomes and they offer schools greater consistency.

Our large UK wide team offers our therapists the consistent team access they require to support both their clinical and professional needs.

National statistics

Findings uncovered within the Bercow report and through the Communication Champion Jean Gross;

2.5
million

people in the UK have speech, language or communication needs (SLCN)

2 to 3
students

in every classroom have significant communication difficulties

1 in 10
children

have SLCN that need long-term support

1% of children

have the most severe and complex SLCN

nearly 2/3

of young offenders have SLCN which existed from childhood

We will ensure that

- › We place one consistent therapist within your setting throughout the contract.
- › All our SALT's are registered with HCPC, RCSLT and are DBS checked. They all carry professional indemnity insurance. Their compliancy is checked throughout the school year to ensure they meet the professional standards.
- › All our SALTs access the latest clinical approaches and have 'hands on' experience implementing these with clients.
- › All our SALTs will offer 1:1 work, paired work, group work, programme work, joint coaching of TAs and Teaching staff, role swapping - leading a teaching group, training both face to face and online.
- › All our SALTs access the latest assessment and therapy equipment from the ITS team, therefore detailed assessment and baselining is always undertaken, delving into the more difficult areas of a client's presentation.
- › All our SALTs access daily mentoring from our clinical lead therapists as well as our large team of mutli disciplinary therapists.
- › All our SALTs have weekly Professional Development Plan opportunities to update their training skills.
- › All our SALTs use evidence-based practice to inform their choice of therapy approaches.
- › All our SALT's are familiar with the SEN framework and can contribute towards reports and assessments.

Our therapists integrate as part of your teaching team

› All our SALTs access specialist mentors, (they can seek second opinions visiting the setting with the specialist therapist) clinical case discussion, advice on assessment results etc. Therefore although we place one consistent named therapist with your setting, you are accessing a whole specialist team.

› All our SALTs measure outcomes and can ensure that you have the latest data to feed into your school's data collection.

› All our SALTs understand the importance of building an excellent rapport with your students, their teaching staff and their family members.

› All our SALTs can access specialist preventative approaches such as Talk Boost TM a highly researched and developed school based programme to support Speech, Language and Communication Needs (SLCN) standards within your school.

› All our SALTs are aware of the National Grammar Test and other such strategies and can help raise the attainment of students who are affected by poor SLCN.

› All our SALTs understand the importance of raising the standards of language acquisition and literacy development within schools and can support improved scores across the school.
