One fine Saturday morning, Sid Snake looked out of the window. It was a lovely sunny day... the sun was shining and the birds were singing. "I think I'll spend the day at the sea-side!", said Sid.

Sid found his bucket and spade ...  ... made a picnic with sandwiches, sausage rolls and salt and vinegar crisps...

...  ... and then set off in his car.

Soon Sid reached the sea.

He sat on the sand, collected seaweed, made sandcastles, and paddled in the sea.

Sid was about to go home, when suddenly, he heard a sound. He looked up and saw a sailing boat sinking into the sea.

Two children were on the boat.

"Save us! Save us!" they yelled.

Sid jumped into the sea, swam to the children, made himself into a circle around them, and pulled them to the shore.

Sam and Sally were soaking wet. Their dad, Mr. Soames came running up. "You were very silly to go out on the boat by yourselves.

Thank goodness Sid was there to save you!"

And the next day, Sam and Sally sent Sid a silver medal that said "To Sid.. Super Hero!"

Now answer these questions about the story you have just listened to.

20

- ① What day was it when Sid went to the seaside?
- ② What sort of day was it?
- ③ What did Sid take with him to eat?
- ④ What did Sid do when he got to the seaside?
- ⑤ What did Sid see when he was going home?
- ⑥ What were the children shouting?
- ⑦ How did Sid save the children?
- ⑧ What were the children called?
- ⑨ What did their dad say?
- ⑩ How did the children say 'thank-you'?

You draw Sid... wearing his medal.
